Redistricting decision promised by Tuesday

By JUNE M. HEYDT

Washington officials have promised Hancock County officials to have a decision on the redistricting issue no later than Tuesday, said Charles Gottschalk, secretary of election commission.

As late as Friday afternoon, the last day to qualify for the primary elections in August, no word had been received from the U.S. Department of Justice on whether the redistricting plan is approved.

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors has acted on the assumption that this year's elections would take place using the proposed new districts unless the Justice Department rules otherwise.

However, if the redistricting plan is rejected, the old district lines stand until a new plan is submitted, according to Walter Gex, attorney for the board of supervisors.

Gex spoke with Washington officials Friday afternoon and was promised an answer by Tuesday.

Three Hancock County candidates were in the position of having to double-qualify, which means if the new redistricting is used they would qualify in one district, if the old is used, they would fall into a different district.

"Only one of the candidates chose to double-qualify," said Marsha Ashworth, secretary for the redistricting effort. "The other two candidates didn't want to run in the old district," Ashworth continued.

The candidate that double-qualified was Willie Carbonette whose district would be four under the new redistricting and would be five in the old redistricting.

When the circuit clerk's office closed at 5 p.m. Friday, candidates had qualified for the various offices in the county.

The change from five to two districts for justice courts will stand, Gex said, because it is the result of a mandate from the state Legislature.

Diamondhead divers aiding Hancock County rescuers

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

A dive rescue squad recently formed to primarily serve Hancock County is assisting in local water-related accidents.

Ed Friloux, Diamondhead Fire Department fire safety administrator, said Friday that nine volunteers recently formed the Diamondhead Dive Rescue Squad and plan to incorporate as a non-profit volunteer organization.

The squad members are donating their scuba diving services and equipment in assisting local law enforcement and medical teams in underwater rescue operations, Friloux reported.

He noted the Hancock group recently assisted the Harrison County Dive Rescue Squad in recovering the body of a man who drowned in the Bay of St. Louis and was summoned Thursday after an automobile crashed through the US-90 Bayou Coward bridge near Pearlington.

Included in the squad are four certified divers—two are certified emergency medical technicians and three are state certified dive rescuers, Friloux reported.

Friloux said he is administrator of the organization which also includes Phillip Nami, squad president of Diamondhead; Edward Friloux Jr. of BaySide Park and Kanda Gaudet of Bay St. Louis, both tenders; Reginald Fayard Jr. of the Diamondhead Department; Jim Gaudet of the Bay St. Louis Fire Department; Gail and David Nami of Diamondhead; and Phillip Chance of Gulfport, all certified divers.

The administrator noted he and Fayard are both EMT's.

Fayard, and Gail and David Nami were recently certified as rescue scuba divers by the state, Friloux reported.

"This is a non-profit association which is funded privately to primarily serve Hancock County, but we will go anywhere our services are needed," Friloux stated.

He said the new squad is dispatched through the Diamondhead department and recognized as an official rescue team by the Hancock Civil Defense and County Sheriff's Department.

Friloux said the squad will be extremely useful in freeing victims of submerged vehicles.

He added that the squad will man a booth at today's Beachfront Festival in Bay St. Louis to answer questions about the volunteer group.

Hearings slated in Bay forgery attempt, theft

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

Preliminary Hancock County Justice Court hearings are scheduled for a Bay St. Louis duo arrested in alleged theft of credit cards and attempt to cash a forged check.

Investigator Delbert Seay of the Hancock County Sheriff's Department reported Friday afternoon that Kenneth Smith, 26, of 500 Hancock St. is scheduled for a 6 p.m. Aug. 3 preliminary hearing before Justice Court Judge Lee Klein and charged with 'grand larceny of credit cards.'

Smith was arrested Thursday afternoon at his residence and released from Hancock County Jail in Bay St. Louis later that day in lieu of $2,000 bond, Seay said.

Arrested at the same time and residing at the same address was Ethel Johnson, 20, who is charged with 'attempted uttering forgery' and scheduled for a preliminary hearing before Justice Court Judge John Chevis at 8 p.m. June 22, the investigator reported.

Seay said that Johnson on May 26 allegedly attempted to cash a counter check at Hancock Bank on US-90 in Bay St. Louis by utilizing a woman's stolen credit cards for identification.

A suspicious teller refused to cash the check and bank officials notified the sheriff's department, Seay reported.

The bank gave a description of the two to the sheriff's department which resulted in the arrests, he said.

INDECENT EXPOSURE

A Bay St. Louis man is scheduled for a County Justice Court hearing after his arrest Thursday on indecent exposure charges.

Seay reported Floyd Cantrelle, 51, of 607 Spanish Acres Drive is charged with 'indecent exposure to minors' and scheduled for a June 15 hearing at 1 p.m. before Justice Court Judge Bruce Necaise.

Cantrelle was released from jail Thursday afternoon in lieu of $500 bond.

shortly after his arrest at his home, the investigator said.

Parents filed charges against the Bay resident alleging he exposed himself Wednesday near his home to three neighborhood children ranging in age from five to eight-years-old.

Pool chemicals cited in Diamondhead blasts

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

Mixing different brands of swimming pool chemicals is cited as cause of explosions and chlorine odor Thursday morning at Diamondhead.

Ed Friloux, Diamondhead Fire Department fire safety administrator and Hancock County Arson Investigation Squad member, Friday reported 12 Diamondhead firefighters including the department's Hazardous Materials Squad, Fire Rescue Unit and pumper Engine No. One responded to a 9:20 a.m. report of explosions and an odor.

Employees of the Diamondhead Pro Shop reported hearing four rapid blasts followed by a strong chlorine odor, Friloux said.

The firefighters found the source of the explosions to be a swimming pool chlorinator at a Lakeside Village condominium complex swimming pool, one of two located nearest to the Pro Shop, the administrator reported.

Friloux said the chlorinator valued at about $50 was completely destroyed in the blasts.

Since the device was constructed of plastic and located outdoors, no injuries or extensive property damage resulted, he noted.

The administrator explained his investigation found the blasts resulted from the mixing of two different brands of swimming pool chemicals.

He further explained that filtered swimming pools require two chemicals (A and B) of the same brand.

Each pool chemical manufacturer utilizes a different 'branding agent' that will cause such an explosion if mixed in water with another brand, he warned.

A male juvenile from Bay St. Louis was also arrested, Dorn added.

Arresting officers were Sandra Henley, Robert Tartavouille, and John Wilkerson.

Committee to eye bounty system for beaver killing

A group of federal, state, local officials and landowners met with Commissioner of Agriculture and Commerce Jim Buck Ross this month to discuss methods of reducing damage and impact beaver have on the state.

"This meeting was necessary because of the millions of dollars lost due to beaver damage on our timber and farm lands in Mississippi," said Commissioner Ross.

As a result of the meeting, an intensified educational program is planned with federal, state and local agencies involved.

A steering committee was appointed by Ross to make recommendations for the educational program, research the market development possibilities, and review in detail the bounty system of controlling the beaver.

Members of the steering committee are Doug James, chairman, Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce; Ramon Callahan, American Soil Conservation Service; Sid Moss, state forester, Mississippi Forestry Commission; Charles Branch, Mississippi Department of Natural Resources; Lon Strong, Mississippi Department of Wildlife Conservation; Dr. Dale Arner, Mississippi State University Experiment Station; A. B.

Farris Sr., landowner; and Rupert Martin, landowner.

An estimated 71,000 acres of forest land, crop land and pasture land are being flooded by beaver impoundments.

The acreage affected is increasing at a rapid rate due to failure to control the beaver, according to Ross.

In a 1978 study by wildlife experts, losses due to the beaver were estimated at $2.4 million annually.

"With this enormous loss, we must begin now to initiate an effective program of stabilizing this problem and then to control the beaver for short term and long term benefits of the landowner," said Ross.

Natchez businessman eyes state auditor's position

Murray Cain, a businessman from Natchez, is seeking the Democratic nomination to the state auditor's post.

Cain, a Lexington native and former auditor, said Mississippi voters should expect their state auditor to subscribe to high ethical standards.

"When elected, I'll account for every tax dollar spent and give the people of Mississippi a state auditor's office that will rank among the highest in the nation in efficiency."

Cain is past president of the Durant Chamber of Commerce, a Baptist deacon, Jaycee Governor, a member of Fellowship of Christian Athletes, Lions Club, Adams county chairman for St. Jude Children's Hospital, and past chairman of the Natchez Salvation Army Advisory Council.

Cain said Mississippians had suffered from the nation's recession but the state's economy is looking better.

"Despite a recession that has hurt our farmers, our industries and every working man and woman in the state, people are beginning to look to a better future," Cain said. "We're making some gains here. There is hope and evidence that we're finally on the right road."

Cain said, "I want to transform the hope of the people to a concrete reality. I want to effectively and professionally administer the state auditor's office."

Cain said his experience as a former auditor and his many years as an independent businessman have prepared him for the duties of the state auditor's office.

Cain said he is asking all candidates or employees of the state auditor's office not to accept special political favors or gratuities from elected officials.

Second, no candidate or employee of the state auditor's office raise money or work in the campaign for me or any other candidate on public time in accordance with state law.

Cain said the voters of Mississippi have the right to expect their state auditor to subscribe to these ethical standards because the auditor is the one who safeguards the state's entire accounting system.

"I'm a businessman. The state auditor's office helps supervise the business of the state of Mississippi. We'll account for every dollar spent and give the people a state auditor's office that will rank among the highest in the nation in efficiency and professionalism," he stated.

Mabus announces candidacy, promises 'different campaign'

Ray Mabus has announced he is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the office of state auditor.

Mabus who was born and raised in Choctaw County is a fourth generation Mississippian. He attended public schools in Ackerman and received his undergraduate degree from Ole Miss. He received his law degree from Harvard Law School.

Mabus has worked for the Cotton Subcommittee of the U.S. House of Representatives. He is a practicing attorney and a member of the Mississippi State Bar Association. He was a legislative assistant and general counsel to Governor William Winter.

RAY MABUS

Mabus says his campaign will be different because, "It will be one based on issues. It will be this kind of campaign because there are things concerning this office that need to be talked about, and it will be this kind of campaign because my idea, different from some experts, is that most people want issues in an election."

"The issues I will be talking about involve one thing, financial integrity; making certain tax dollars are spent correctly. I will be talking about issues such as the fact that the auditor's office is almost five years late on county audits. There is just no excuse or explanation for being that far behind. It is killing our counties' bond ratings, and it is not fair to our taxpayers or to our elected officials," Mabus said.

"I will be talking about issues such as the fact that in the last four years of audit exceptions dated 1975-76-77 and 78 there was more than a half million dollars in mispent taxpayers' money that the auditor's office took no action on. There was also more than $2 million in exceptions on which the disposition was, at best, unclear," Mabus said.

Mabus said, "I will be doing what Mark Twain advised, 'Tell the truth. It will confound your opponents and astound your friends.'"

"The auditor's office is the only place in Mississippi with not only the power but the duty to make sure tax dollars at every level of government are spent correctly. It can save our state literally millions of dollars. It insures the financial accountability of every office, and financial accountability is the heart and soul of the fiscal integrity of this state.

Mabus continued, "I believe I am the right age for this office, young enough to have the energy and enthusiasm necessary for such a big job yet old enough to have the experience and maturity necessary to make and stick to tough decisions."

"It has been a long time since someone from completely outside the auditor's office held the job. It is time for a fresh approach to the office whose only allegiance is to the voters and taxpayers and whose only commitment is to seeing to it that tax dollars are not wasted."

"Finally I am running for this office because I learned in the fight to pass the Education Bill that it isn't good enough to say that things are in a mess, and it isn't good enough to wish things were better. To make things better you have to work to make them that way and you have to be in a position that counts."

"Every taxpayer in Mississippi works hard to earn his money and every time that taxpayer pays one dollar in taxes he has the absolute right to know that the money is being spent correctly."

Quotables by Cuevas

There were anxious minutes for several of Hancock County's elected officials Friday as the qualifying deadline for the Democratic and Republican Primaries drew to a close.

It appears this county election will be the shortest ballot we can ever remember with so few candidates seeking office.

Only one office seemed to stir quite a few candidates, and that is for constable in just about every district.

One factor which probably limited the number of candidates is the uncertainty of the district lines for district offices.

The Justice Department which has to approve all redistricting has not as yet accepted or rejected the district lines submitted by our board of supervisors.

Some feel there may not be an election on the district bases in August.

We heard a decision was to be given on Friday by the Justice Department and now we hear Tuesday.

Guess we will just have to wait, wait and continue to wait for an answer.

Friday was sure a beautiful day for Mississippi to celebrate Hospitality Day.

This year Hancock County has had the opportunity of having Mississippi's Miss Hospitality as a visitor at our Welcome Center on I-10.

Maybe we are getting older, but, the young ladies seems to be getting prettier each year.

We were able to talk to Renee Henderson of Columbus, Mississippi's 1982-83 Miss Hospitality, and we can say we are very proud to have her as our representative for the state.

The Columbus beauty is loaded with poise, personality and intelligence. I just wish everyone in our state could see how gracefully she greeted visitors, especially young children at the Welcome Center.

This year's Beachfront Festival is scheduled for this afternoon.

Promoters indicate the event this year will include many activities and some especially for children.

The festival gets underway at 1 p.m. and will be located along Beach Boulevard in Bay St. Louis from deMontluzin Avenue to OLG Church grounds.

All types of crafts are scheduled to the event and several bands are scheduled to perform.

Well, it will be blood time again on Wednesday, that is blood drawing time.

The drawing will be held at the American Legion Home on Blue Meadow Road from 2 to 8 p.m., according to J.D. (Big John) Rutherford, Hancock County chairman.

We realize there are several drawings a year, but, the reason there are so many is because of the need of blood.

If you have not donated a unit of blood in recent weeks, we urge you to visit the blood drawing on Wednesday afternoon.

Several fellow members of the Bay St. Louis Rotary Club had to get out the linament this morning after the 15-mile ride in the bike-a-thon yesterday.

They found there were muscles which haven't been used in many years and they were a little stiff this morning.

We do want to thank everyone who sponsored a rider, because the monies raised are used for community projects the Rotary Club supports throughout the year.

Tourist attraction is aim of Hospitality Day events

"Some of our Best Friends are Tourists" sums up the important role tourism plays in Mississippi's economy. It's a billion dollar industry that affects all Mississippians, from the motel desk clerk to the store keeper to the farmer.

To emphasize tourism as an economic development resource, June has been designated Hospitality Month in Mississippi and Friday was Hospitality Day.

Sponsored by the Division of Tourism, Mississippi Department of Economic Development, the program prompts Mississippians to recognize tourism's economic importance and to extend a friendly hand to visitors.

Among the major benefits of the industry in Mississippi are the estimated 37,000 jobs that are directly supported by tourism, providing an annual payroll of over $200 million.

Thousands more, such as the farmer supplying food for a restaurant or the construction worker building a road financed by tax dollars, profit from tourist business.

According to George Williams, tourism director, the industry is Mississippi's third largest, generating $1.4 billion in expenditures for travel-related goods and services. That translates into approximately $65 million in tax revenues.

Several communities around the state have planned special activities on June 3 and throughout the month, such as gift baskets, receptions, or the surprise presentation of meals and accommodations to unsuspecting tourists.

In state Welcome Centers, travel counselors and people from local businesses and civic clubs will celebrate June 3 with cake, balloons, crafts demonstrations and the presentation of free meals, Mississippi specialty items and other gifts to lucky tourists.

Miss Hospitality Renee Henderson welcomed visitors to the Hancock Center at I-10 and Hwy. 607.

Mississippians are encouraged to join in community activities and show visitors that their business is appreciated by being courteous, helpful and friendly.

TOURISM FACTS

In 1981, it is estimated that travel and tourism in Mississippi generated:

- * Approximately $1.4 billion in expenditures (includes all sales of travel-related goods and service)
- * $64.9 million in tax revenues (80% or about $45 million goes into the state's general fund)
- * $201 million in payroll
- * About 37,000 jobs (directly supported by tourism)
- * Approximately 9 million visitors

Humane Society solicits rummage for mini-sale to support programs

Editor,
The Sea Coast Echo

Dear Editor,

The members of the Bay-Waveland Humane Society would like to announce that starting with our last sale held this Spring, we plan to have four mini-sales a year, each lasting only one day.

Another sale will be coming up in July and as usual, we plan to have it at the Civic Center on Coleman Avenue in Waveland.

The exact date of the sale will depend upon when we obtain permission to use the center, and will be announced in the Echo.

As always, our purpose in having such a sale is to raise the money that we desperately need for helping needy and homeless animals and in our vital spay-neuter program which benefits the entire community.

If any community members have any contributions to make in the way of household goods, clothing, rummage, etc. or anything of value, we would be delighted to hear from them and to arrange pickup.

Please call one of our workers at 467-4148, 467-0307, 467-3451, 467-6555 or 467-9548, either for making donations or to get further information on the work of the society.

They will be delighted to hear from you. We are also interested in increasing our membership, and information on this may be obtained through the above numbers.

We appreciate your help.

Retiring Bay High teacher recognized by former student

May 23, 1983
Editor,
The Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Dear Editor:

Once again it is graduation time. Each student has been molded and readied for 12 years by a variety of intertwining factors, certainly the most important of these being his teachers. Though teachers are often blamed for students' educational shortcomings, they are rarely thanked for the good that they do in developing the minds of today's youth.

Each and every one of us owes a great deal of gratitude to the teachers who have guided us in our educational endeavors and have thus helped us attain what we have today.

We have had so many teachers, in fact, that it is all but impossible for us to remember the names or even the faces of each of them.

However, there are usually a very few who truly stand out in our minds as being special for a number of reasons.

I would like to take this opportunity to recognize one of this area's finest educators upon her retirement. She possesses all the best qualities that could possibly be found in a teacher.

She is knowledgeable about her subject, and she knows how to impart her knowledge. She teaches in such an interesting and creative way that students enjoy learning and are therefore eager to do the necessary work.

In addition to the basic material being studied, she always manages to have some extra little relevant item of special interest to share with her students. In a time when we hear so much about disciplinary problems in today's classes, she always commanded the utmost respect from her students and discipline was never a problem.

Perhaps her most important quality is her personal interest in each student as an individual. Few teachers take the time to get to know their students, and students appreciate a teacher's sincere interest.

I do not know how many years she has been teaching nor how many students she has taught, but I do know that I am not alone in expressing my sincere thanks to Mrs. Emily deMontluzin for being the fine educator and person that she is. I know that Bay Senior High will not be the same without her.

I myself graduated from Bay Senior High several years ago and have since entered the teaching profession. I have always considered myself lucky to have been in her classes, and I continuously strive to achieve what she was able to in the classroom.

I would like to join others in the community to congratulate Mrs. Emily deMontluzin on a successful teaching career and wish her the very best.

Sincerely,
Keith S. Folse

Attendance said low at Seniors' art show

Editor,
Sea Coast Echo

Dear Sir,

On Saturday, May 28, the Hancock Art Association held its art show on the grounds next to the Hancock County Library.

A lot of work went into getting this show together.

Our instructor, Mr. Carl Baldenhof, expressed his disappointment on the attendance.

I realize money is tight right now; even though not many pictures were sold, just having the public see the wonderful display would certainly have helped to make him feel it was worth his efforts.

Mr. Carl has worked miracles with all of us.

For those who missed this greatest display of art talent ever shown in Bay St. Louis, I feel sorry for you.

Most people don't realize what they have until it's gone.

Mr. Carl, we love you and hope you live forever.

Thanks,
Lucille Luke

SMOKING AND HEART DISEASE

Cigarette smoking is the number one cause of preventable death in this country.

Diseases that can be traced to smoking cost the United States an estimated $13.6 billion in direct medical care and $25.8 billion in lost productivity and wages every year.

The real tragedy, though, is not the financial drain imposed by our smoking habits but the great number of deaths that result from the use of tobacco each year.

Most people are aware of the damage that cigarette smoking does to the lungs.

Millions of Americans suffer from chronic obstructive lung disease, which includes chronic bronchitis and emphysema.

Together, these diseases are responsible for more than 100,000 deaths annually. Each year, too, some 110,000 Americans die from lung cancer.

What is not so well known, however, is that cigarette smoking also is a major cause of heart attack and is associated with other heart and blood vessel diseases.

The number of people who die prematurely from these smoking-related diseases is far greater than the number who die from lung cancer.

In the face of this preventable tragedy, and despite repeated warnings about the hazards of cigarette smoking, about one-third of adults still smoke.

And they could be in trouble. The person who smokes a pack of cigarettes a day is two to five times more likely to have a heart attack than a nonsmoker of the same age, sex, weight and cholesterol levels.

A long-term, government-funded study found that the risk of having a heart attack within the next six years for a 40-year-old, nonsmoking male with normal blood pressure and cholesterol level was just 7 in 1,000. That risk jumps to 20 in 1,000 for a similar man who smokes two packs of cigarettes a day. And if that two-pack-a-day smoker has moderately elevated blood pressure and cholesterol levels, his risk of having a heart attack by the time he's 46 increases to 50 in 1,000.

The process by which cigarette smoke brings about harmful changes within the body remains obscure, but it is evident that damage to the cardiovascular system takes place gradually over a period of years, the effect progressing steadily with each cigarette.

All too often, a smoker's first warning that he is damaging his health is a... sometimes fatal... heart attack.

But there is good news for smokers who kick the habit. Although the harmful consequences of smoking add up over time, cigarette by cigarette, and endanger the health of the chronic smoker, the increased risk of heart disease seems not to be permanent.

If smoking is stopped, the ex-smoker's risk of heart disease returns, in one to five years, to a nonsmoker's level of risk.

Evidence of the harmful effects of cigarette smoking on the heart and lungs continues to mount. Implicit in that evidence is a message, a bit of scientifically sound advice, that could save your life: If you smoke, you should make every effort to quit; if you don't smoke, you should congratulate yourself and plan never to start.

ETV Brief

ARTIST'S LIFE

A documentary about a Mississippi artist produced by Mississippi ETV has received a coveted Golden Eagle award from the Council on International Nontheatrical Events (CINE), a prestigious international film festival.

Professional juries selected the program "Dusti Bonge, The Life of an Artist" to represent the United States in international film and videotape festivals abroad. Ed Van Clee, an executive producer at Mississippi ETV, produced, directed and edited the program.

"Dusti Bonge, The Life of an Artist" is a half-hour video portrait of artist Dusti Bonge of Biloxi, a zesty, vibrant woman whose abstract paintings are characterized by their bold, colorful style. Her work has been shown at the Museum of Modern Art and other major New York City galleries. In the program, she is shown at work on a new painting and talking about her life in the arts, which has included not only her work on canvas but also on the stage.

Among the ETV employees who worked on the production were Scott Didlake, assistant to the producer; Ludwig Goon, cinematographer; Stanley Graham, lighting; and Eddie Bunkley, Steve Darsey and Lee Harrison, sound. Luigi Zaninelli of Hattiesburg composed the original score.

Allain asks Reagan to explore nuclear dump issue in person

Attorney General Bill Allain Wednesday urged President Reagan to expand his scheduled June 20 trip to Mississippi to include a meeting with state and local officials to discuss proposals to make Mississippi a nuclear waste dumping ground.

Allain's request follows U.S. Department of Energy hearings in Richton, Jackson and Gulfport to gain citizen input on the proposal to store high-level nuclear waste in Perry County.

Testimony at the hearings was nearly unanimous in opposition to the proposed sites. "Since President Reagan is going to be in Mississippi anyway, I felt this was the best way to let him know firsthand of the unified opposition to these proposals," Allain said.

"With the conclusion of the hearings, now is the time to take whatever steps are necessary to stop any further consideration of Mississippi as a dumping site."

Allain said he also contacted local officials in 23 Central and Southern Mississippi counties asking for their help in securing such a meeting.

"If we can get a bipartisan, united effort from state officials, local officials, and individual citizens, I believe the President will realize the severity of this problem to our state and agree to meet with us," Allain said.

In addition Allain asked Reagan to give Mississippi the same absolute veto power over the selection and use of any nuclear waste site as was given to Louisiana.

"All Mississippi's citizens want is equal treatment by having the same absolute veto power given Louisiana," Allain wrote the President.

"You have long espoused decision-making at the state level. What greater decision could there be for citizen input than one like this, which would affect their lives and those of generations of Mississippians to come."

The two Perry County sites are among nine sites in the United States identified as potentially acceptable for underground disposal of high-level radioactive waste and nuclear fuel.

CHUCKLE CORNER

"DID YOU SAY... SHORT-CUT?"

ROBERT ALTMAN

Robert Altman has always been a highly individualistic, uniquely gifted director. But with his latest vision, "Come Back to the 5 and Dime, Jimmy Dean, Jimmy Dean," Altman displays a genuine genius level of artful cinema. Altman's first commercial success was "M*A*S*H," starring Elliot Gould and Donald Sutherland, which eventually spawned the long running television series.

Since "M*A*S*H" Altman has been on a roller coaster of creativity. His good films — "California Split," "Buffalo Bill and the Indians," "McCabe and Mrs. Miller" — have been mixed in with his bad films — "A Wedding," "Quintet," "Popeye." But in 1976, Altman produced a masterpiece, "Nashville," a careful, cynical film that looked at fame and fortune in the country music industry.

All of Altman's films — good and bad — have had their moments but none, not even "Nashville," contain the emotional intensity of "Jimmy Dean, Jimmy Dean."

Altman debuted this original play, written by Ed Graczyk, on Broadway. The critics hated it, the crowds stayed away in droves and it closed within a month.

Undeterred by this lack of interest, Altman didn't give up on the material. He simply changed the media from stage to screen. He even retained the original cast from Broadway including Sandy Dennis, Cher and Karen Black. The result of all this is an affecting, highly personal film that deals with a myriad of bizarre, complex subjects in a small Texas town.

The movie opens in a Woolworth's 5 and Dime complete with soda fountain. The characters in this dime store are busy putting up decorations in anticipation of an upcoming reunion of the Disciples of James Dean. The Disciples were a small, close-knit group from 1955, formed when James Dean came to their town to film the movie "Giant." At this point, the film deals in superficial anxiety and turmoil, the physical exhaustion caused by the intense heat and the emotional anticipation of people returning to a town they haven't seen in years.

Then Altman begins to utilize a great cinematic technique. He uses the mirror behind the soda fountain as a sounding board and flashback screen. Through the mirror we are able to see into 1955 and what made the Disciples of James Dean so important to some.

From this point on, the film literally drips symbolism. There are so many quirky nuances and definitive camera movements that it is impossible to convey all the meanings that Altman, Graczyk and this incredible cast have generated here.

Sandy Dennis, who has always played the hysterical neurotic better than anyone else, is stunning. Her rainblowing monologue of a chance encounter with James Dean is mesmerizing, dream-like.

Her character, Mona, is a complex, high-strung woman who wants everything to be perfect, or at least the way she sees it.

An Altman regular, Karen Black, is equally impressive as Joe Ann, the boy turned girl because of some extraordinarily atrocious acts practiced by some of the local town folk.

Her character really goes through the emotional spin cycle complete with rivers of mascara that stream off her face. But the real find in this showcase of female thespian talent is Cher's Sissy. At the beginning, we see Sissy as the quintessential party girl. She is quick-witted and ready to tell everyone what she thinks at any given time. By the finale, Sissy has succumbed to the truth and undergone a catharsis that will change her life forever.

By the end of "Come Back to the 5 and Dime, Jimmy Dean, Jimmy Dean," all hypocrisy has been stripped away leaving only the remnants of the characters we thought we knew. And in the film's final shot, an uncontrollable shiver ran through my body. It is an incredible film.

Police Department lists burglary, theft charges

By EDGAR PEREZ

Bay St. Louis police report the arrest of seven adults and five juveniles on a variety of charges.

Two Gulfport men are charged with a May 9 theft of cash from Furniture Liquidators on Main Street, according to Chief Douglas Williams.

Captain Robert Butler identified the suspects as Ronnie Hicks, 23, and Gerald Rocker, 25.

Hicks was arrested three days after the incident and Rocker was picked up Wednesday at a Department of Corrections parole office in Gulfport.

Rocker is reportedly on parole from Mississippi State Penitentiary at Parchman, Butler said.

The two are lodged in the Hancock County Jail, officers stated.

Officers reported the arrest May 25 of a juvenile in connection with the burglary of several vehicles, including those of Ms. Janet Aime and Gerald Gex.

Aime reported loss of a cassette player and important papers, and Gex lost an expensive pair of binoculars, police said.

Investigation in the case turned up items thus far not reported stolen, officers said, adding the investigation is continuing with more arrests expected. Items positively identified have been returned to owners, Williams noted.

A citizen's report of a burglary in progress at the Veterans of Foreign Wars lodge on St. John Street Friday morning resulted in the arrest of the second juvenile.

Officers apprehended the juvenile inside the building. He was handcuffed and placed in a patrol car while officers continued their search for additional suspects.

The juvenile fled from the car, but was located later that morning.

Others arrested and the charges filed as a result of the incident include Abijah Nelson Chasteen, 18, 539 St. John St., malicious mischief and accessory after the fact; Robert Charles Poyadou, 18, 508 DeMontluzin, accessory after the fact; and Melvena Ann Chasteen, 19, also of 539 St. John St.

Officers investigating the case include Sergeants Tom Pustay and Wilbert Dorsey, Investigators Murray Ladner and Ben Palmer, Waveland police and Hancock sheriff's deputies.

Ladner arrested Kent Bell, 24, of 201 Easy St., Bay St. Louis on May 30 in connection with the theft of a television set from 701 Union St., Apt. 1.

Ladner said Bell was found in possession of a controlled substance and drug paraphernalia.

Bond was set at $8,500, the investigator stated.

Bond of $15,000 was set for Scotty Gyins, 24, of 549 Sycamore St., Bay St. Louis following his arrest May 31 by Butler in connection with alleged breaking and entering an occupied dwelling.

Butler reports the Bay St. Louis Police Department is continuing its efforts to collect past due court fines.

"We invite residents who owe fines to come in to the police department and make arrangements for payment rather than wait until they may be arrested from their home or places of employment," Butler urges.

"Terms can be arranged to suit the individual's economic situation," Butler added.

Nuptial Mass unites Bernard, Willis

Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church was the setting of the May 21, 11 a.m. Nuptial Mass uniting Ms. Linda K. Willis and Richard P. Bernard in marriage.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Richardson of Bay St. Louis and the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Besancon and the late Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Richardson.

The groom is the son of Mrs. Donald P. Bernard of Newport Beach, Ca. and the late Dr. Donald P. Bernard. He is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Bernard and the late Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Sovis.

Father Francis Farrell performed the double ring ceremony before an altar adorned with large baskets of gladioli, peach and white carnations, roses, baby's breath and ivy interspersed with satin ribbons and lace.

Readings were delivered by L. J. Necaise Jr. and Mrs. Robert Fayard, cousins of the bride. Offertory gifts were presented by Miss Karen Arnold, cousin of the bride. Musical selections were rendered by Donald and Conrad Mauffray, accompanied by Vic Frankiewicz Jr., organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a traditional gown of silk organza, satin, and chantilly lace with Victorian styling. The bodice featured a high neckline outlined by silk venise lace and iridescents. The sheer yoke of English net was bordered in a wide ruffle of point d'esprit and chantilly lace. The sheer tapered sleeves were accented with sprays of venise and chantilly laces and cuffed at the wrists with pearl buttons.

The A-line skirt was defined at the waist with venise lace enhanced with a lace design and swept to the back to form a cathedral length train of satin bordered in chantilly lace.

Her picture hat was appliqued with chantilly lace and detailed at the back with a tulle bow and a hand-rolled fingertip veil.

She carried a cascade of roses, baby's breath and ivy interspersed with satin ribbon and lace.

Regenia Lee of Gulfport was maid of honor. Shirley Layne and Mari Thompson of Bay St. Louis attended their sister as bridesmaids. Miss Tanya Layne, niece of the bride, was junior bridesmaid.

Wendy Kingston of Waveland was flower girl.

The attendants were attired in formal gowns of peach chiffon fashioned with off-the-shoulder ruffle and flounced hemlines with satin ribbon at the waistline and long sheer sleeves. They wore peach hats adorned with spring flowers and satin ribbon. They carried nosegays of daisies, peach miniature carnations, baby's breath and ivy with peach satin ribbon.

Donald P. Bernard of Newport Beach, Calif. served his brother as best man.

Groomsmen were James Gurley of Waveland; Dave Schussler of Long Beach and Kent Farris of Biloxi.

Ian Willis, son of the bride, was ring bearer.

Joe Richardson Jr., brother of the bride, served as usher.

Mrs. Richardson chose for her daughter's wedding a formal gown of soft apricot chiffon with a cummerbund waistline, a high mandarin collar with a chiffon capelet and a softly flared skirt. An orchid corsage completed her ensemble.

The groom's mother chose for the occasion a long-sleeved cafe-au-lait dress with a high neckline and a straight skirt. An orchid corsage also completed her ensemble.

A reception followed at the American Legion Club House. The bride's table held a four-tiered fountain wedding cake decorated with pale peach sugar-spun roses, fresh daisies, peach carnations and ivy. The top tier was held in place with a crystal champagne glass and topped with a small bouquet of miniature flowers. The cake was made by the bride's sister-in-law, Mrs. Joe Richardson Jr. and was cut by the bride's godmother, Mrs. Edna Farve.

The groom's cake was served by Mrs. M. P. Bummara, aunt of the bride.

Large baskets of gladioli, peach and white carnations, roses, baby's breath and ivy decorated the reception rooms. The guest register table held spring flowers with baskets of peach satin roses filled with rice which were given to the guests.

Music was furnished by Danny Johnston.

On return from a Caribbean cruise the couple will make their home in Gulfport.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. Grace Richardson and sons and Mrs. Gracie Sawyer and sons of Metairie, La.; Mr. and Mrs. Carl Richardson, Mrs. Donald Ory and Donna, and Mrs. Sue Fisher and Lisa of Marrero, La.

Hard work characterizes Baptist volunteer visit to Italy

"How are our volunteers getting along?" asked the Mississippi pastor on a transatlantic call to Rome, Italy. "Are they having a good time?"

"They're working hard," came the response from Rome.

"Then they are having a good time," responded Nathan Barber, pastor of First Baptist Church of Bay St. Louis.

Bruce Burrows, David Ratcliff, Sam Wilbourn and Jack Hode had come May 1 for two weeks to do carpentry work at the Baptist Conference Center in Rome. They laughed while they worked.

Italian conference director, Bruno Colombu and his wife Tina remarked that a group of Italian workers would have been very loud.

They were surprised at how willingly and gladly the men did a difficult job of remaking and refinishing shutters for the three story building.

About eight years ago Robert and Flora Hollifield of Mississippi presented a dream of a conference center for

In 1982 before the Hollifields returned to Jackson, Mississippi on furlough, the conference center was turned over to the Italian Baptist Union, the organization of Baptist churches in Italy.

Bruno Colombu and his family moved from Altamura where he was pastor, and he continued the work which the Hollifields had started.

Through a contact of Robert Hollifield with a friend, Rev. Nathan Barber, arrangements were made for a team of men to come to Rome to work on the building.

The men brought a variety of skills in various industries: David Ratcliff is a retired boiler maker; Bruce Burrows is a retired chemical plant worker; Sam Wilbourn works at NASA as a hydrologic technician; Jack Hode is a calibration technician, but that doesn't hinder his standing in the window sills of the second and third story to paint window frames.

The men reworked half of the shutters of the building. The grateful director, Bruno Colombu, drove the men to the

THE ABUNDANT LIFE

By Shaun Murphy

MINISTER, BAY ST. LOUIS CHURCH OF CHRIST

"Ask, and it shall be given you, seek, and ye shall find, knock, and it shall be given unto you. For everyone that asketh receiveth, and he that seeketh findeth, and to him that knocketh it shall be opened. Or what man is there of you, whom if his son ask bread, will he give him a stone? Or if he ask a fish, will he give him a serpent? If ye then being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children, how much more shall your Father which is in heaven give good things to them that ask him?" (Matthew 7:7-11)

Jesus unleashes some very bold promises in his sermons. And yet perhaps none is so bold as this one.

And perhaps also none of his promises are disbelieved so much as this one among his people.

That's not to say that the average Christian wouldn't admit that there is merit and even some power in prayer. It is to say that the average Christian today does not believe in the power of prayer to the degree that Jesus believed in it!

Jesus actually had the audacity to think that if you or I as God's children asked for something good that we would receive it as assuredly as your child might receive a glass of water from you when he asks for it!

And I don't know about you but I don't think your average twentieth century Christian really believes that!

Because if we did we would certainly spend more time talking to our Father in heaven who is the only one who can give us what we need.

Notice that Jesus uses three distinct words - ask, seek, and knock; these three words imply distinct degrees of intensity. There is the "asking" in the spoken words of prayer, the "seeking" in the efforts and labors which are put forth in carrying out prayer, and the "knocking" at the gate with the urgent importance which claims admission into the Father's house.

You see earnest, sincere, heart-felt prayer is encouraged here! These three words forbid any ritualistic or formal prayer.

And so Jesus continues to such seemingly outlandish statements as recorded in John 15:7 "If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will and it shall be done unto you."

And the majority of the "religious" world continues to find ways to talk around these bold statements of our Lord.

But all that really matters is whether you and I believe his promises.

"For everyone that asketh receiveth, and he that seeketh findeth, and to him that knocketh it shall be opened."

STAGE MUSICAL

"Working," the TV adaptation of the stage musical based on Shids Terkel's book, is scheduled for an encore on "American Playhouse" at 10 p.m., Friday, June 10, on the Mississippi ETV Network.

The songs for "Working" were written by a team of composers and lyricists, including Craig Carnelia, Micki Grant, James Taylor, Mary Rodgers and Susan Birkenhead and Stephen Schwartz.

"My book is a celebration of the 'ordinary' people, whose lives are unsung," said Terkel, who appears as narrator and host. "The musical adaptation added a new dimension. It now sings about those people, the anonymous many whose lives touch ours every day without our realizing it."

"No matter how bewildering the times," he said, "no matter how crude or rough these ordinary people may speak, they are all aware of a sense of personal worth, no matter how demeaning their work may seem."

Among the performers in "Working" are Scatman Crothers, Barbara Barrie, Beth Howland, Barbara Hershey, Ellen Brennan, Rita Moreno, James Taylor, Didi Conn, Charles Durning, Patti LaBelle and Jennifer Warnes.

Federal Fair Housing Act amendments proposed

Proposed amendments to the Fair Housing Act, designed to provide "tough enforcement and swift justice," have been announced today by Housing and Urban Development Secretary Samuel R. Pierce Jr.

In disclosing the proposal during a luncheon address at the National Press Club, Pierce said it fulfills the President's call in his State of the Union Message for "effective enforcement of our national fair housing laws—essential to insuring equal opportunity."

The proposal, which represents an accord between the HUD secretary and the attorney general, was approved by the President earlier today.

The Fair Housing Act, which was enacted 15 years ago last month, makes it unlawful to discriminate against any person in the sale or rental of housing because of race, color, religion, sex, or national origin.

The authority and responsibility for administering the Act are vested in the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development.

Current provisions of the Act rely principally upon conciliation of complaints.

The secretary said the proposed amendments would put teeth in the Fair Housing Act. When a complaint cannot be quickly solved it would authorize the HUD secretary to send it to the attorney general's office to take a suit directly to federal district court.

"This," the secretary emphasized, "goes far beyond the current jurisdiction of the Justice Department which is limited to cases involving multiple instances of discrimination."

For the first time, cases on individual complaints will be handled by the attorney general. This keeps the burden of enforcement where it belongs, on the federal government rather than on the individual victim.

Pierce added, "in order to emphasize the clear public interest in the prevention of discriminatory housing practices as well as to add teeth to the enforcement arsenal, it authorizes the attorney general to seek substantial civil penalties. For the first time, the attorney general will be able to seek fines against landlords who are keeping our pledge of equal housing from being realized."

Hoping that there will be frank and open discussion with members of Congress on the amendments to the Fair Housing Act, the HUD secretary said: "We must never lose sight of our mutual goal of ending discrimination in housing."

He concluded by saying: "Fair Housing is an issue that transcends partisan concerns. It is a problem that deserves and, I am confident will get, the best effort of all of us working together. I know it is a goal that all of us share."

MEXICO IS SUFFERING

Devaluation of the peso notwithstanding, Mexican farmers are suffering. So are the villagers. And little wonder the blue collar working men and women are discontented with their government officials as they work under a minimum wage scale of $2.50 per day, instead of an hour.

This writer has just returned from a week and a half south of the border — from Ciudad Juarez where poverty glares at you from the endless procession of sun-baked adobe structures to sophisticated Mexico City where obviously communist-inspired demonstrations are getting more serious every day.

We found Mexico a land of extremes. Its poverty level staggers the human conscience. Her cities gleam in extravagance alongside abject squalor. Her people are buffeted by hot desert winds that threaten their very existence. A smog hovers chokingly over Mexico City, the world's largest city, and Guadalajara, Mexico's second largest city, and tears at lungs at high altitudes.

Almost, it would appear, Mexico is without hope. For over an hour in Chihuahua we watched uniformed workers marching in an unending procession to the downtown plaza bearing placards protesting their sorry economic state of affairs. All day Sunday a loudspeaker boomed out militant speechmaking in the downtown plaza. Yet the disenchantment in this land of usual enchantment was orderly. Parading workers smiled at the visiting "Norteamericanos" and invited picture-making.

It was Sunday, Mexico's Labor Day, May 1, 1965, and it surely must have been troublesome news for government officials. A drum and bugle corps set the mood. Beribboned banners preceded each group that passed in review, expressing their displeasure at the economic problems they face.

The farms appeared worse off. South of Mexico City to Taxco the mountainous farmlands have had no rain for the past two months. Broken by crude wooden plows, the poor fields parched beneath a smoggy sun awaiting rain before corn could be planted.

We had flown southward from El Paso-Ciudad Juarez to Chihuahua and witnessed a sterile desert and mountainscape until we found an irrigated valley near Chihuahua where young green crops struggled against the desert winds.

Later, as we rode a train through the scenic Sierra Madre mountains to the Pacific Coast we saw a land too dry, precipitous and harsh for the Indians that cling to the slopes to have vegetable gardens. Instead they wove baskets, sewed dolls, and sold them and withered little apples to wayfarers on the Cooper Canyon's daily train through the unusual region.

At an airport I talked with a displaced Californian now living as a Mexican citizen. He sees no immediate hope for the Mexican economy, and says most middle- and upper-class Mexicans are haunted by an economic spectre that won't vanish until some drastic changes take place.

We talked to a brilliant tour guide who credited his climb to starting out as a wetback in California.

It began to make sense — better wet, than red or dead!

HEARTWORM DISEASE

You and

Your Pet

BY MARTY CHAMBERS, MS

With the advent of summer comes the aggravation of many of your dog's problems which have abated during the winter.

One of these is the likelihood of becoming infected with heartworms, since heartworms are transmitted by mosquitoes.

Over 70 species of mosquitoes in North America harbor and transmit heartworms, parasites which were at one time restricted to the southern and eastern U.S. but are now being reported as far west as California and as far north as Canada.

The following sequence illustrates the life cycle of the heartworm:

- 1) Mosquito ingests microfilariae from an infected dog.
- 2) Inside the mosquito, microfilariae develop into infective larvae in 2-3 weeks.
- 3) Mosquito draws blood and deposits larvae.

- 4) Larvae travel to the dog's heart, where they mature into adult worms in about 6 months.
- 5) Adult female worms give birth to microfilariae, which travel through the bloodstream.
- 6) Cycle begins again when mosquito sucks blood of newly infected dog.

Adult females reach a length of 10-14 inches; males attain about half this size. It is the adult heartworms that do most of the damage by increasing the heart's workload and restricting blood flow to the lungs, kidneys, and liver.

Symptoms of heartworms may not appear until a year after the initial infection, and they include coughing, tiring quickly and labored breathing with exertion, and weight loss.

By the time a dog shows symptoms, the heartworm disease is already well advanced. That is why a heartworm test should be performed by your vet every six months. This involves drawing a small sample of blood and checking it under a microscope for the presence of microfilariae.

Approximately 10 percent of heartworm infections may elude diagnosis by blood sample for the reason that some dogs with the adult parasites in their heart have no microfilariae in their bloodstream. In these cases, x-rays of the heart will show the presence of heartworms.

If your dog is found to have heartworms, the first step in treatment by your vet is intravenous injection, twice daily for three days, of a medication which kills the adult worms. Rigid adherence to a program of restricted activity (accomplished by confinement to a cage if necessary) during the month following the first step of treatment is extremely important.

After the adult worms have been killed, the microfilariae are eliminated by medication usually given in tablet form for seven days. If, following this treatment, re-examination of the blood shows no microfilariae, your dog can be started on heartworm preventive, which comes in liquid, pill, or chewable tablet and must be given daily for maximum effectiveness.

Puppies under 6 months of age may be started on heartworm preventive without a preliminary heartworm check, because it takes at least that long for the larvae to mature into adults. However, the heartworm preventative may be fatal to dogs harboring adult heartworms. Never start a dog on preventive until your vet has certified the absence of heartworm disease.
